DETAILED ACTION

1. Claims 1 and 7 are presented for examination. Claims 1 and 7 have been amended.
Claims 2-6 and 8-37 have been cancelled.

Drawings

2. Objections withdrawn due to the amendment.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

3. Claim 7 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. Claim 7 recites the limitation "said information" in line 2. There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Art Unit: 2125

4. Claims 1 and 7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over J.P. Pat. No. 408228920A to Kikuchi in view of U.S. Pat. No. 6,255,630 to Barnes.

Referring to claim 1, Kikuchi teaches a cooking utensil for cooking a food by using predetermined heating means (See constitution section on first page of the translation), said cooking utensil comprising:

(a) means for setting a maintenance time for each of a plurality of maintenance items by arbitrarily setting a calendar date for executing each of said maintenance items (See constitution section on first page of the translation),

(b) means for tracking calendar dates and determining when said maintenance time for each of said plurality of maintenance items occurs (See paragraph 16 of the translation);

Referring to claim 1, while Kikuchi teaches all the limitations disclosed above and further teaches two cleaning processes to be executed on two different times and dates (See constitution section on first page of the translation), and Kikuchi further teaches a control panel with a display (See paragraph 8 and figure 4 of the translation), Kikuchi fails to teach informing means displays a predetermined sign on an operating panel of said cooking utensil informing a user when each calendar date occurs for executing the maintenance. Furthermore, Kikuchi fails to teach displaying the user informed maintenance item after said predetermined sign is displayed. Referring to claim 7, Kikuchi fails to teach that after informing said user of the execution time, said information is automatically removed by performing the corresponding one of said maintenance items.

The examiner respectfully submits that the claims, as such, do not require an action taken by the user in response to the informing means. The examiner respectfully submits that there is no limitation on what the predetermined sign is required to be. Furthermore, the maintenance items are not required to be different, as discusses in the previous office action. Further still, steps a-d are not even required to be used for the cooking utensil.

However, referring to claim 1, Barnes teaches a cooking appliance including cleaning operational modes (Col. 2, line 54 – Col. 3, line 12) and a display for indicating the cleaning operational modes (Col. 5, lines 1-5), wherein Barnes clearly teaches receiving operational information indicative of desired operational modes and times for successive operations, wherein a user is visually conveyed information concerning these operations in a display, wherein the visual display indicates the amount of time until the start of the next operation during the current operation, wherein the display also indicates the operational mode for each of the operations prior to the starting of the next operation (Col. 10, lines 1-19).

Referring to claim 7, Barnes teaches the cooking utensil above, wherein, after informing said user of the time until start, said information is automatically removed by performing the corresponding one of said maintenance items (Col. 8, lines 56-59; Col. 5, lines 1-5, CLEANED).

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time that the invention was made to combine the teachings of Barnes with the teachings of Kikuchi to display the amount of time until the next cleaning operation and the cleaning operation, as taught by Barnes.

One of ordinary skill in the art would have been motivated to combine these references because Barnes teaches a control system for a cooking appliance that is designed to ease the inputting of program information by a user and also convey status information to the user. Furthermore, Barnes teaches the system can allow for successive operations with a display indicating the operations selected and the amount of time before the next operation will be initiated (Col. 1, line 54 – Col. 2, line 1).
